Youssef is an outgoing, cheerful student who enjoys engaging with the teacher and participating in class. Youssef comes to class prepared, always completes his homework, and is very active in classroom activities. He is not afraid to speak up in class, and he gets along well with the other students. He makes an effort to participate during lessons, and he has a level-appropriate understanding of the material. He speaks very well, but he needs to pay more attention. He has made great progress in reading in recent weeks. I hope Youssef will overcome his natural shyness and take pride in reading aloud. He can usually complete his book work and follows directions well.

Youssef has learned a lot of vocabulary and grammar in the past few months, so his comprehension is much better now. He listens attentively and always understands what I'm asking the class to do. In listening exercises and activities, he does reasonably well. I am very happy with his general progress and understanding of the materials we are studying.

If he continues to persevere and keeps up his great attitude, Youssef will do quite well in his future English studies.
